Compulsory REVISION comments	This is an opinion paper that provides opinion on the compulsory vaccination against Covid-19 in Ghana. The manuscript argued well based on the ethical and legal aspects to support compulsory vaccination. However, the legal and ethical supports are glaringly incomplete to hammer the fact that vaccination should be compulsory. Although ethical and legal aspects allow compulsory vaccination, the quality/type of vaccine and the immune response from vaccination are other issues that must be considered and 'argued' upon when deciding to make vaccination compulsory. In other words, the benefits of vaccination must be overwhelming. We cannot allow compulsory vaccination if vaccine is of unknown quality or if vaccination provides uncertain protection, even though the law and the ethic allow vaccination. Furthermore, there might be argument that vaccination is not the only way to control this disease. These are the issues lacking in this manuscript to completely nail the subject
