Compulsory REVISION comments	This interesting paper describes in great detail the history of Kenyan freedom struggle with reference to the revolutionary movement of the 1950s and its Gikuyu peasant leaders to understand the motif behind dramatic reconstruction of the anti-colonial struggle in the play The Trial of Dedan Kimathi (1976). Secondly, the paper is focusing on the Thiongo's ideas of unity and resistance at the grassroots level by analyzing the community play I Will Marry When I Want (1977) which deals with the persistent struggles in the post independent Kenya of the 1970s.
Minor REVISION comments	Word that should be changed such as: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Proselytization instead of prozelytation (page 1) • Afrikans instead of Afrikaans (introduction).
Optional/General comments	Very current topic that shows 'the struggle for freedom' against the colonial power or at times against powerful bureaucracy. Also, it shows how "the strangers of the land, ironically, become the rulers exercising indigenous rights, while the original indigenes become aliens."
