Compulsory REVISION comments	In my opinion although, this manuscript contains good information on crop residue management and pays special attention to some parts of India as well as special products, especially rice. But it seems that 1- there is not enough connection between the text and the title of the manuscript. 2- In most of the presented text, appropriate references are not mentioned... The question arose for me whether the author has written all the information in the manuscript, whichh is without reference, according to his studies?
