Compulsory REVISION comments
Minor REVISION comments	The author has been able to emphasize the intent of the research carried out in the abstract section. However, in the introduction, the author cannot show the contribution of research to scientific development. The novelty of this study is stated by the author on the side that there is no paper discussing the role of private companies in the telecommunications sector on development in Nigeria. This paper does not discuss the extent to which the successful initiation of policy strategies chosen by private telecommunications companies is manifested in calculation figures such as how much money was donated to the covid 19 committee, how many trees have been planted and so on. The author needs to sharpen the results of the analysis by presenting more detailed figures about the participation of these private telecommunications companies in each of the initiation activities that have been determined.
