Compulsory REVISION comments	The study has been carried out well, but there are a large number of grammatical mistakes and errors that have been highlighted and which have to be rectified. Include punctuation marks wherever needed. Many of the paragraphs have to be rephrased and restructured as they are not clear and donot make any sense. Certain additions and deletions have to be made as indicated. Indicate % to total in all the tables. In certain tables, it is better to have a split up of tables than merging it as one. Serial numbering must be corrected and must not be indicated in bold.No explanation has been given for Table 11. For table 11 and Table 12, multiple responses have been given by the respondent; this must be indicated below the tables for clarity. In Table 15, the ranks have to be arranged rankwise. The contents of the table column "particulars" must always be left aligned while the numerical values are to be centre aligned and this has to be followed for all the tables. Use only one tense throughout the text ie., past tense. The percentage totals of all the tables donot add upto 100. References have to be cited as per the referencing pattern indicated in the journal guidelines.
Minor REVISION comments	Donot start any sentence with a number. Certain sentences are incomplete. Write % as per cent when written among text. Follow appropriate spacing in between the lines.
Optional/General comments	Donot make use of spinbot software, if at all you have used it.
