Compulsory REVISION comments	The manuscript reports "an overview of pharmacovigilance and adverse drug reaction monitoring of COVID-19 drugs and vaccines during the COVID-19 pandemic". Although it accumulates potentially useful data, the manuscript suffers misuse of uniform presentation of abbreviations. I break off here to comment on the clarity of the English text, the abstract and conclusion would need minor revision to be more attractive. Additionally, a lot of information have explored in this study, they are essentially descriptions of other author's results. There is nothing about statistical treatments. In the light of the international literature, the topic presented here is so interested and I'm agree with to publish such papers.
Minor REVISION comments	The quality of the English text is sufficient. But, numerous statements remain unclear. See in the text, <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Comments in colour yellow were unclear need a revision. - Comments in bleu were corrected and need to check. - Comments in red need to remove definitive.
Optional/General comments	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -The manuscript needs a list of abbreviations. - I respect the author's efforts but I found that the following phrase of abstract "This paper gives an insight into the global pharmacovigilance monitoring and surveillance of new chemical entities (drugs and vaccines) and new technologies targeting the management of COVID-19" is not more attractive for readers. - All the reference need to re*write uniformly.
