Compulsory REVISION comments	The article addresses an important topic. However, there are major deficiencies. Firstly, methodology should include more details on the data collecting instrument, the method the mean physical score/psychological score was calculated, how the sample size was calculated and the procedure of obtaining ethical approval. The methodology should also specify what is meant by "alcoholism" (i.e. is it drinking daily, drinking once a week etc..) and smoking. Secondly, more analysis could be done to find whether there is a link between the socio-demographic characteristics (e.g. age, sex, educational status, marital status) and economic problems with the physical or psychological stress in this age group. Discussion in this article is simply a repetition of the results. The discussion should include comparison of the results in the study with studies done in other regions in the world. Recommendations should be based on the finding on the study. The recommendations given in the article are not based on the results of this study. The study also does not include any limitations. There are also errors in the English language.
