Minor REVISION comments	This case report of a 64-year-old patient with acute pulmonary embolism due to covid 19 disease is well summarized. Fluent language was used in the article. Although thromboembolic complications have been found in COVID-19 patients, there is still no proven preventative treatment for them. For this reason, all clinical studies on this subject are very important. The discussion section needs to be revised.
Optional/General comments	none
