Compulsory REVISION comments	The topic of the current research paper is in a very important and interesting field. 'Hyperacute' Gullain Barre Syndrome (GBS) is an extremely rare condition. It is an aggressive form of demyelinating polyradiculoneuropathy where onset of symptoms to maximum neurodeficit occur in 48 hours or less. Other possible disorders that present similarly should be ruled out first. Early progression of weakness is also a heralding sign of respiratory paralysis and need of mechanical ventilation. Immunomodulatory therapy should be initiated at the earliest. It is the cornerstone treatment for GBS. Anti-ganglioside antibody analysis of the serum and CSF revealed high levels of anti-GQ1b. In this regard, the research performed is adequate and is obtained by applying modern methods. The present work is crucial for early diagnosis of this syndrome and for rapid response.
