Minor REVISION comments	This study addresses a very simple question on the frequency of use of alternative medicine among patients with diabetes. The title looks like an examination question. Could be reworded "Study of the use of alternative-----" or similar. The authors have not given the criteria for diagnosing diabetes- was it based on Fasting and PP blood sugar? Or HbA1C? How many of them had target organ involvement such as neuropathy or nephropathy or retinopathy. People with uncomplicated diabetes who are otherwise asymptomatic are unlikely to go for alternative medicine. After the above points are addressed, may be accepted for publication
Optional/General comments
