Compulsory REVISION comments	There is no single cause of depression that can be explained. Many factors such as the stressors encountered, the predisposition of the individual, genetic factors, family history, and environmental factors are factors for the development of depression. The medical education process, which includes a difficult working process all over the world, can be a source of depression. However in order to diagnose and diagnose depression, other accompanying factors must be eliminated. In this study, the data on the epidemiology and etiology of depression are quite insufficient. In addition, I would like to draw attention to the fact that when DSM 5 is examined, it is considered as an umbrella term for depression and there are different types. The information given about the method of the study is extremely insufficient. The amount of research examined in a meta-analysis study is not sufficient. In addition, current studies should be included. It is seen that the literature review is far from completeness in itself. This part also needs some regulation. After the necessary corrections and a more detailed study, this study, which is worth researching, will be published in your journal.
