Compulsory REVISION comments	Dear Ladies and Gentlemen, Dear Journal-Team, the manuscript 'Assessment of knowledge and attitude of basic life support (BLS) among schoolteachers in the Jazan region, Saudi Arabia' raises the attention and investigates the necessary increase of basic life support knowledge. It is well written. The tables are sufficient. 1. Keywords: Please don't use abbreviations without explanations for basic life support (BLS) and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). 2. Table 5: Check the negative numbers for the statistical test and confidence interval in the sections 'CPR skills simulation' and 'Participate in CPR'. 3. Minor points: a) Material and Methods, Statistical analysis, line 7: Change to 'Analysis of variance'. b) Results, line 8: Change to 'The majority ..., and must knew ...' c) Discussion, 3rd section, line 8: Change to 'such as less training for female teachers'. d) References: Omit the '1' at the beginning of reference 6 and check reference 22 for spacing. Sincerely,
