Compulsory REVISION comments	In the study named "Effects of opioid sparing analgesia for surgical procedure of laparoscopic pyloromyotomy in order to enhance recovery and better surgical outcomes", successful pain control was achieved in infants without using opioids. In the introduction, the authors talked about the fluid-electrolyte imbalance caused by infantile hypertrophic pyloric stenosis and dealt with the unnecessarily long mechanism. If they want to use this subject, they should comment on the basic balance of the study, not using opioids and electrolyte imbalance. In addition, the authors, is there a relationship between the duration of surgery and the pain scale of 103 patients? If they explain, the work would be better.
